CAPITAL REGION GROUP HOME SUPERVISOR STOLE FOOD STAMP BENEFITS FROM DISABLED RESIDENTS UNDER HER CARE

ALBANY – New York State Inspector General Catherine Leahy Scott today announced the arrest of a former Capital Region group home supervisor who stole food stamp benefits from developmentally disabled residents under her care, and used her company’s grocery store credit account to stock her own home with food.

Heather Seahorn, 47, of Clinton Street, Albany, was arrested today on charges including 23 counts of Falsifying Business Records in the First Degree, two counts of Endangering the Welfare of an Incompetent or Physically Disabled Person in the First Degree, and one count of Grand Larceny in the Fourth Degree, all felonies, and 10 counts of Petit Larceny, a misdemeanor.

“This defendant’s theft from some of our most vulnerable citizens was stunningly disdainful,” said Inspector General Leahy Scott. “I remain committed to working with law enforcement partners and honest businesses to pursue anyone who shows such clear contempt and disregard for those individuals who are most in need of assistance.”

An investigation by Inspector General Leahy Scott found that from January through August 2015, Seahorn used Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (“SNAP” or Food Stamps) accounts belonging to two developmentally disabled group home residents to make approximately $1,800 in food purchases for herself and her own family. During the same time period, she used the grocery store credit account of her employer, Albany-based Living Resources, to buy about $800 in groceries for herself. The account’s intended purpose was to allow group home employees to purchase grocery items for the Living Resources group home in Colonie that Seahorn worked in. Living Resources is certified by the New York State Office for the People with Developmental Disabilities to provide residential services for the developmentally disabled.

Seahorn resigned her position with Living Resources in August 2015.

Seahorn was arraigned in the Town of Colonie Court and released pending her scheduled reappearance for March 8, 2017 in that court.

The defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty in a court of law.

Inspector General Leahy Scott thanked Living Resources for their assistance and cooperation with the investigation, the New York State Police for their assistance with the arrest, and Albany County District Attorney P. David Soares and his office for prosecuting this matter.
